

Our Fellowship Class of 2022

Welcome

Dear Members of the Class of 2022 and Friends of the Foundation,

It is our privilege and pleasure to present and congratulate the Fellowship Class of 2022.

To the Class of 2022, we are pleased to facilitate your passion for public service and public interest work. Your Fellowship Class of 2022 is another remarkable group of students, and brings the historic total of Foundation Fellows to 326 since our first class in 2005. Your 28 members hail from 19 US law schools and the Warsaw campus of the Collège d'Europe. Three of you are veterans.

The broad geographic range of your Fellowships – Maine to Puerto Rico, and San Francisco to Warsaw – is exceeded by the scope and importance of your public interest work, and the richness of your hopes and dreams for the future. We know this by hearing from your supervisors and mentors, and meeting you in this summer's welcoming event and on the discussion about the Ukraine crisis.

To our Friends, in the ensuing pages you will meet our Sustained Impact Fellows and our Public Policy Fellows. Our Sustained Impact Racial Justice Fellows are working on building police–minority community relations, protecting the voting rights of people of color, and seeking reforms in the juvenile justice system. Our Sustained Impact Puerto Rico Disaster Response Fellows are continuing the initiative we began just after Hurricane Maria. And, our inaugural Sustained Impact Veterans Justice Fellow is working to correct “less than honorable discharges” for a number of veterans.

Our Public Policy Fellows have a remarkable array of public interest pursuits: in environmental and sustainability law, space and satellite law, disability rights, protection of vulnerable citizens from fraud, enhancement internationally of child labor laws, housing rights, human rights, Central European geo- political policy, immigration, protection of women against violence, and justice from both the prosecutor's and public defender's side.

A special thanks to the Fellowship alums and current and past lawyers at the Squire Patton Boggs firm who are serving as mentors this summer. Yours is an especially valuable – and, we are confident, rewarding – contribution to the launch of the careers of the Fellows.

As the Foundation begins to focus on its 25th anniversary in 2025 and the dimensional growth and impact we strive to continue, we express our appreciation to our law school friends in the Deans' Circle, and to our partner organizations in the Sustained Impact Fellowship Program. We are especially appreciative of the firm's support, and of the generous contributions by so many individuals through your service as mentors, as Board members and as Advisory Committee members.

To our financial donors who set records in 2021 by your numbers and the amount of your contributions, we devote several pages in this brochure to recognizing and thanking you once again for making possible the Fellowship Class of 2022.

We invite you to learn more about the Foundation, to participate in our activities, or to make a contribution.

Please contact Dee Sparks, Secretary to the Foundation, or either of us, to do so.

Sustained Impact Fellows

Andi M. Dorning

Sustained Impact Puerto Rico Fellow
University of Cincinnati College of Law
Centro Para Puerto Rico, San Juan, PR

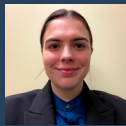

Andi Dorning is a member of the class of 2024 at the University of Cincinnati Law School. As a Fellow, she will work on social justice projects for Centro Para. Andi graduated summa cum laude from the University of Cincinnati and earned Phi Beta Kappa honors. She has done exemplary volunteer activities – interning for the Ohio Innocence Project and raising money to combat childhood cancer – and was a student government and sorority leader as an undergraduate. She has professional fluency in Spanish, and describes herself as “a passionate professional who owns responsibility, works with purpose, and lives to create an impact.”

Dori Butler

Sustained Impact Puerto Rico Fellow
Georgia State University College of Law
Ayuda Legal Puerto Rico, San Juan, PR

Dori Butler brings her passion for environmental stewardship to Ayuda Legal. Dori has completed her second year at Georgia State, having graduated from the University of Georgia where she majored in journalism. She has taught environmental education programs, and now serves as an officer of the Environmental Law Society. A faculty member who worked on the response to Hurricane Katrina describes Dori as “exactly the type of lawyer-in-training that my colleagues and I would have welcomed to join us in the exhausting but deeply rewarding work of post-hurricane long-term community recovery.”

Kaitlyn Naylor

Sustained Impact Racial Justice Fellow
SMU Dedman School of Law
Citizens Complaint Authority, Cincinnati, OH

Kaitlyn Naylor attends the Dedman School of Law at Southern Methodist University. She is working in Cincinnati to build and improve its police/minority community relations with the Citizens Complaint Authority. Kaitlyn was an undergraduate at the Texas Tech College of Business, where she was on the Deans’ List for all semesters, received a Presidential Scholarship, and was a Rawls Business Leadership Scholar. She has expressed eloquently her “passion and drive to facilitate change,” driven in part by her experience of growing up in a mixed community with friends of color who experienced racial discrimination. Kaitlyn welcomes this Fellowship opportunity to work on police reform with the Authority because it is an independent third- party organization, which emphasizes collaboration between the police and Cincinnati’s minority communities.

Marcus Montgomery

Sustained Impact Racial Justice Fellow
University of Arkansas School of Law
Lone Star Justice Alliance, Dallas, TX

Marcus Montgomery, University of Arkansas School of Law, will work for the Lone Star Justice Alliance on juvenile justice in minority communities in Texas. Marcus has received many academic awards. Between college and law school, he worked for the Arab Center in Washington. That experience, plus tutoring immigrants in English and his modest upbringing propel Marcus' interest in public policy and civil rights. He believes that public policy can and should be used to unite disparate groups and foster a sense of community. At Lone Star, Marcus is focusing on raising the minimum age for adult offenses, especially for non-violent offenses.

Abigail Lola Young

Sustained Impact Racial Justice Fellow
University of Miami School of Law
Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law Voting Rights Project, Washington, DC

Abigail Young, University of Miami School of Law, is working on the voting rights project of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights under Law. She graduated from the University of Wisconsin and is a Public Interest Scholar at law school. Abigail's prior internships with the Innocence Project and the Harvard Legal Aid Bureau, together with her studies and her service as an editor of her law school's Race and Social Justice Review, demonstrate her strong commitment to public service. She is pursuing her strong commitment to protecting the right to vote in communities of color through her legal research and discovery preparation for the Texas redistricting case, Texas State Conference of the NAACP v. Abbott.

Joshua A. Clem

Sustained Impact Veterans Justice Fellow
University of Arkansas School of Law
Swords to Plowshares, San Francisco, CA

Joshua Clem is our inaugural Veterans Justice Sustained Impact Fellow. Josh served in the US Marine Corps for five years, including an eight-month tour of duty in Afghanistan. Following his service, Josh earned a B.A. degree at Williams Baptist University, and is a rising 3L at the University of Arkansas School of Law. Josh is working with our partner organization, Swords for Plowshares, a San Francisco Bay Area community non-profit organization that has helped veterans since 1974, and is dedicated to supporting nearly 3,000 homeless, low-income and at-risk veterans every year. Josh's work with the legal unit will focus on VA benefits and military discharge issues.

Public Policy Fellows

Sarah M. Dean

American University Washington College of Law
Dept. of Labor, Counsel for Int'l Affairs and USERRA, Washington, DC

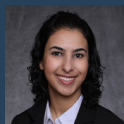

Sarah Dean, class of 2023 at American University's Washington College of Law, is working at the U.S. Department of Labor's Office of the Solicitor on the Department's annual Findings on Child Labor report. It focuses on the worst forms of child labor around the world and recommends improvements. Sarah has a strong international background. She is on the staff of the International Law Review, and has a Masters in International Conflict Resolution and a B.A. in International Affairs. A prior fellowship enabled her to study at the American Institute for Indian Studies in Jaipur, India, and she is proficient in Hindi. This Fellowship is helping her fulfill her dream of working on matters at the intersection of international law and labor and employment law, especially migration policy.

Maxwell Rom

Case Western Reserve University School of Law
Disability Rights Maine, Augusta, ME

Maxwell Rom attends Case Western Reserve University School of Law, where he is pursuing a law degree in business. Max is interning this summer at Disability Rights Maine, a federally mandated protection and advocacy organization for people with disabilities. This work will entail client-specific work and research on issues facing people with developmental disabilities. He was inspired by a family member with a disability to pursue this public policy experience. Max obtained his undergraduate degree in economics at Bates College where he competed on the Varsity Men's Rowing team.

Isra Ghanem

Case Western Reserve University School of Law
Habeas Corpus Resource Center, San Francisco, CA

Isra Ghanem is pursuing her law degree at Case Western Reserve University School of Law, where she founded and heads the Muslim Law Students Association. Isra's internship this summer at the Habeas Corpus Resource Center in San Francisco is supporting teams representing death row inmates in post-conviction habeas corpus proceedings. This experience will further her desire to pursue a career in obtaining justice for minorities. Isra has a medical background and obtained her undergraduate degree from Cleveland State University.

Mark Dela Peña

Catholic University of America Columbus School of Law
Office of the Fairfax Commonwealth's Attorney, Fairfax, VA

Mark Dela Peña is pursuing his law degree at Catholic University Columbus School of Law where he is in the Law and Public Policy Program. After graduating from SUNY Maritime College, Mark joined the U.S. Marine Corps where for six years he was deployed and trained platoons of Marines for the execution of security operations around the world. Mark will intern at the Office of the Fairfax Commonwealth's Attorney this summer, where he will provide litigation support to the Office's prosecution of crimes in Fairfax County. His goals are to learn how progressive criminal justice policies are implemented at the state level and to pursue a career in public service.

Kent Trespalacios

Catholic University of America, Columbus School of Law
US House of Representatives, Office of Congressional Ethics, Washington, DC

Kent Trespalacios is pursuing his law degree at Catholic University Columbus School of Law where he is a member of the Law School's chapters of The Federalist Society and The Criminal Law Society. Kent is interning this summer at the Office of Congressional Ethics, a non-partisan office within the U.S. House of Representatives, providing support to its investigations of official misconduct. As an undergraduate at George Washington University, Kent interned at the U.S. Department of Justice in the Consumer Protection Branch. Kent looks forward to furthering his public service experience and pursuing a career in prosecuting public corruption.

Katja-Elisabeth Herrmann Eufrazio

Collège d'Europe
Warsaw Institute, Warsaw, Poland

Katja-Elisabeth Herrmann Eufrazio is our first Fellow from the Warsaw campus of the College d'Europe, where she is pursuing a Master's Degree in Transatlantic affairs. This summer she is with the Warsaw Institute, a prestigious Poland-based think tank. The crisis in Ukraine and the geopolitical situation in Central Europe are among Katja-Elisabeth's areas of work at the Institute. She is multi-lingual, and earned degrees from Maastricht University and the University of Groningen, where she tutored and was a research assistant. She also studied at the Aristotle Institute in Greece. She aspires during her Fellowship to contribute her experiences and insights about Central Europe to discussions among the Fellows – a contribution vividly made during a recent discussion of the Ukraine crisis.

Ashlei Anderson

Georgetown University Law Center
Advancement Project, Washington, DC

Ashlei Anderson is a rising 2L at Georgetown Law School. She will be working at the Advancement Project, where she will support staff attorneys, community organizers, and communications strategists on issues related to policing and criminalization in communities of color. Ashlei's interest in racial justice is long-standing. She previously served as a Legislative Intern for the Congressional Black Caucus and a Civil Liberties Fellow at the American Civil Liberties Union. Ashlei plans to devote her career to "impact" litigation that will "improve the lives of people who come from communities" like the one in which she grew up in Detroit.

Audra Murphey

Georgia State University College of Law
The Southern Center for Human Rights, Atlanta, GA

Audra Murphey attends Georgia State University School of Law, where she is ranked second in her class. Audra is a graduate of Georgia Institute of Technology, served as President of the Ivan Allen College Student Advisory Board for Undergraduate students, and was a Truman Scholarship Institutional Nominee. This summer, Audra is interning at The Southern Center for Human Rights, where she will focus on reforming the criminal legal system in the "Deep South," including researching unconstitutional practices within prisons and jails, engaging with the community, and advocating for humane treatment and due process. She was drawn to The Southern Center because of its focus on "movement-building," which the Center describes as a coalition of people and organizations who are passionate about criminal justice reform.

Rona James

Howard University School of Law
Montgomery County State's Attorney, Rockville, MD

Rona James is pursuing her law degree at Howard University School of Law. She previously externed with the SEC Student Honors Program in the Enforcement Division. Rona is interning this summer with the State's Attorney Office in Montgomery County, Maryland in the Special Prosecution Division. Her work will protect seniors and other vulnerable adults who have become victims of financial crimes. Having grown up and worked in Baltimore with inner-city youth, Rona wants to be a business legal advocate for disadvantaged persons. Rona received her undergraduate degree at University of Maryland, where she majored in Criminology & Criminal Justice and Spanish.

Abigail Arnold

Southern Methodist University Dedman School of Law
Texas RioGrande Legal Aid, Eagle Pass, TX

Abigail Arnold is a 2023 J.D. candidate at the Southern Methodist University Dedman School of Law. A graduate of Biola University, Abigail is working this summer with Texas RioGrande Legal Aid, the largest legal aid provider in Texas and second largest in the United States. Abigail will be providing a variety of legal services to low-income residents of Eagle Pass and Del Rio, Texas, as well as migrant and seasonal workers and members of the Kickapoo Tribe. Abigail previously has worked or volunteered for a wide array of nonprofit organizations serving the underprivileged on immigration and other issues. At Dedman, she serves as staff editor for the International Law Review Association and Vice President of the Immigration Law Students Association.

Cara Cavanaugh

The George Washington University Law School
Federal Communications Commission, Satellite Division, Washington, DC

Cara Cavanaugh is our first Fellow whose goal is to be a space policy lawyer. She is pursuing her law degree at the George Washington University Law School, where she co-founded the Space Law Society. Cara's internship this summer is with the FCC's Satellite Division. Previously, at the Science and Technology Policy Institute, she supported the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) and other federal agencies in their work on national policy for planetary protection. Cara holds a master's degree in Science Communication from Dublin City University, studied at Oxford University, and received her undergraduate degree at Princeton University.

Libby Califf

The Ohio State University Michael E. Moritz College of Law
Hamilton County Public Defender's Office, Cincinnati, OH

Libby Califf is a member of the class of 2023 at the Moritz School of Law at Ohio State University, where she also was an undergraduate. She is an associate editor of the Ohio State Journal of Criminal Law, and an Eminent Scholarship recipient. This summer Libby is working at the Public Defender's Office for Hamilton County (Cincinnati metro area). The role of the Public Defender's Office to defend low income individuals charged with crime is essential to our justice system. Pursuant to a special Hamilton County program, she is representing criminal defendants in court. Libby worked this past year for a private defense attorney. She sees this Fellowship as a significant part of her development of a career in criminal defense.

Lexi Robertson

University of Arkansas School of Law
Legal Aid of Arkansas, Rogers, AR

Lexi Robertson, class of 2024 at the University of Arkansas Law School, has outstanding undergraduate achievements. She graduated from the University of Arkansas magna cum laude, majored in Dependent African and American studies, and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Lexi has been active in public service and student government programs. This summer she is working with the Domestic Justice Group at Legal Aid of Arkansas. Her work is concentrating on representing low income survivors of domestic violence, being part of the healing process that many communities in northwest Arkansas need, and developing policy proposals to address this societal problem.

Ana Sofia Mello

University of California Hastings College of the Law
Immigrant Legal Resource Center, San Francisco, CA

Ana Sofia Mello is a student at the University of California, Hastings College of Law. Ana is fluent in Spanish and Brazilian Portuguese. Prior to law school, Ana worked as a paralegal for a non-profit in Portland, Oregon, helping immigrants navigate the complex naturalization and asylum process. During her first year of law school, Ana volunteered doing country condition research for asylum petitioners from Central America as part of the school's Center for Gender and Refugee Studies. This summer, Ana is applying that experience and her language skills while expanding her legal knowledge interning at the Immigrant Legal Resource Center in San Francisco.

Ashley M. Ward

University of Cincinnati College of Law
Ohio Justice & Policy Center, Cincinnati, OH

Ashley Ward is a rising 3L at the University of Cincinnati College of Law, where she is a member of the International and Human Rights Law Review. Ashley is spending the summer working at the Ohio Justice & Policy Center, which advocates for people who are currently incarcerated or who have a prior criminal record. She is representing individual clients and is advocating for "policy improvements in the criminal legal system that provide fair sentences and equitable, humane treatment" for currently and formerly incarcerated people. Ashley plans to work on criminal and human rights law issues for the federal government or an international non-profit organization.

Mary E. Slosson

University of Colorado Law School
Colorado Water Trust, Denver, CO

Mary Slosson will be graduating from Colorado Law School in 2024 with a very interesting and well-rounded background. She earned her Master's degree in journalism from the University of Southern California, with honors, and while going to school, wrote for the Los Angeles Times. She continues her freelance writing, now for The Oregonian, High Country News, and NPR, to name a few. Mary spent a summer in Morocco and, as an undergraduate, raised funds to build a primary school in Uganda. Mary is working this summer for the Colorado Water Trust, furthering her strong interests in water conservation and water management.

Rachel Gärlick

University of Denver Sturm College of Law
Disability Law Colorado, Denver, CO

Rachel Gärlick, a 2024 J.D. candidate from the University of Denver Sturm College of Law, is spending her summer at Disability Law Colorado, which protects the rights of people with disabilities and elders through direct legal representation, advocacy work, education and legislative analysis. Rachel is assisting the education team on issues relating to access of children with disabilities to public education. She graduated from the University of California–Irvine with a double major in Education Science and English, and is now pursuing a Masters of Social Work concurrently with her law degree. Rachel previously held several teaching positions and worked on educational equity issues for the California Department of Education.

Solène E. Crawley

University of Denver Sturm College of Law
Sustainable Development Strategies Group, Gunnison, CO

Solène Crawley holds a B.A. degree in International Studies from Colorado State University and is a 2024 J.D. Candidate at the University of Denver Sturm College of Law, where she is a member of the Natural Resources Environmental Law Society. Solène is serving her Fellowship at the Sustainable Development Strategies Group, which provides governments and communities with research tools and economic strategies that support sustainable living, including the integration of United Nations Sustainable Development Goals into national legislative frameworks. Having spent three years living in Okinawa, Solène will assist in assembling and translating Japanese source materials, among her other duties.

Bailey Beauchamp

University of Miami School of Law
DOJ, Office of Violence Against Women, Washington, DC

Bailey Beauchamp will graduate from the University of Miami School of Law in May 2023 with numerous honors. Her Fellowship work is with the US Department of Justice, Office on Violence Against Women, undertaking policy work on how indigenous women are disproportionately impacted by violence. Since her long-term career goal is to work for as an administrative or legislative policy director, Bailey is especially excited about her SPB Fellowship, and looks forward to its providing her experience in coalition building and policy implementation.

Crystal Tran

University of Texas School of Law
The American Civil Liberties Union of Texas, Houston, TX

Crystal Tran is enrolled in the Dual Degree program at The University of Texas at Austin, where she is simultaneously pursuing her law degree from the UT School of Law and Master of Public Affairs from the LBJ School of Public Affairs. She is a summa cum laude graduate of the University of Houston, and was a teaching assistant with Fulbright Taiwan. Crystal chose the ACLU of Texas for her Fellowship. From her hometown of Houston, she is focusing on racial inequities in the criminal justice system. Crystal looks forward to a legal career deeply rooted in public policy and hopes to use her Texas roots to give back to marginalized communities in Texas.

Michael O.D. Pruitt

University of Virginia School of Law
DOJ Civil Rights Division Housing & Civil Enforcement Section, Washington, DC

Michael Pruitt, a member of the Class of 2024 at University of Virginia Law School, is serving his Fellowship at the U.S. Department of Justice Civil Rights Division’s Housing and Civil Enforcement (HCE) Section. A seven-year veteran of the U.S. Navy, Michael earned a master’s degree in Policy Management at Georgetown University while serving concurrently at the Office of Naval Intelligence. After receiving assistance from HCE to remedy a predatory landlord action against him while he was deployed, Michael became a fair housing advocate at the state and local level, including service on the Arlington Landlord-Tenant Commission. Michael is working with HCE this summer to enforce Fair Housing Act policies at the federal level.

Helen Malley

Yale Law School
American Civil Liberties Union: Human Rights Program, New York, NY

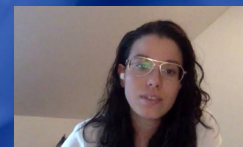

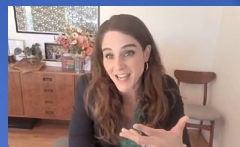

Helen Malley is working at the ACLU’s Human Rights Program and Criminal Law Reform Project, where she is litigating and advocating at the intersection of domestic and international human rights. An aspiring academic, Helen hopes her Fellowship summer will help her “gain a better understanding of how to use domestic and international policies together to advocate for those experiencing human rights violations in the U.S.” Helen is a rising 2L at Yale Law School, where she is a member of the YLS Defenders’ Society, Capital Assistance Project, and the Yale Prison Education Initiative. She graduated from the University of Chicago with a B.A. in History and Human Rights in 2021.
